ETFs Exchange Traded Funds (ETFs) are a type of investment fund that are traded on stock exchanges, just like individual stocks. They typically track the performance of a specific index, commodity, or asset class.

Options Options are financial contracts that give the holder the right, but not the obligation, to buy or sell an underlying asset at a predetermined price (the strike price) on or before a specified date (the expiration date).

Other Other financial instruments include futures, swaps, and derivatives, which are used to hedge risk or speculate on price movements in various markets.

Commodities Commodities are raw materials or primary products of agriculture or mining, such as oil, gold, and wheat, which are traded in standardized contracts.

Indices Indices are statistical measures that represent the performance of a group of assets, such as the S&P 500 index, which tracks the performance of 500 large U.S. companies.
