

I created one output variable for every entry. All these entries shall use the same exit logic (trailer) – the one we are building currently. Unlike the aforementioned output variables I use only one SL variable and TP variable for all entries together at the moment. Is that feasible? And is it feasible to use one single variable regarding position size for all entries as well?